Glen and Kim cuddle shortly after he revealed he was battling Alzheimer's

GLEN & WIFE KIM

GLEN'S DAUGHTER DEBBY

SAVE GLEN CAMPBELL!

Tragic singer's kids ask judge to end his wife's control over money and medical care

THE bitter family feud over the care of Alzheimer's-stricken Glen Campbell is headed before a judge!

Two of the Rhinestone Cowboy singer's eight children, Debby Campbell-Cloyd and Travis Campbell, filed court documents charging the country legend's fourth wife, Kim, has neglected Glen. They also claim she is preventing his kids from seeing the star at his nursing home.

The children are asking the court to appoint conservators and a guardian to oversee their dad's medical care and finances.

"I don't know that Kim has ever gotten along well with Debby or Travis," says a friend of the family. "But Glen loves all his children - period."

Debby was upset when Kim, 56, moved Glen into a long-term facility last June - without even telling his kids.

"It's really sad when you find out your parent has been put in a facility...and you have to read about it rather than hearing it from his wife," Debby fumed at the time.

She insisted her father should spend his final days "surrounded by loved ones at home" rather than in an institutional facility.

But Kim, who has three kids with Glen, replied, "It is crushingly sad to see him afflicted with Alzheimer's. But indulging those feelings does not help him. I am his wife, and no one wants him home more than I do."

He's 'secluded from the rest of his family'

In court papers, Debby, 58, and Travis, 49, charge Kim is not providing their 78-year-old father with toiletries and clothing, fails to visit him on a regular basis and may be mishandling his finances. They also contend she's keeping Glen "secluded from the rest of his family."

And Debby objects to Kim allowing mentally-challenged Glen to be interviewed and filmed while at the Nashville facility.

"A lot of people think Debby and Travis are being vindictive toward Kim, but they just want to be part of taking care of him," says the family friend. "With the bad blood, the court may be their only alternative for getting that."

Campbell revealed he was battling Alzheimer's in June 2011 before embarking on a farewell tour documented by the film I'll Be Me. The movie included the heart-breaking ballad I'm Not Gonna Miss You, a love song he wrote to Kim that was nominated for an Oscar and won a Grammy.

But as the once-vibrant entertainer spirals ever downward, his family continues to fight over him.

"Kim is the one who's been by Glen's side for more than 30 years," says the friend. "She fully believes she's doing the best possible by her husband, not only in making him happy but also preserving his legacy for his fans."

BLOOD MONEY!

A NEW reality show planned by Bobby Brown's family – that will exploit his daughter Bobbi Kristina as she lay comatose in a hospital – has triggered a firestorm of outrage and cries of “blood money!”

The series centering on Brown's and Whitney Houston's 22-year-old daughter, who was fighting for her life after being found unconscious in a bathtub in January, brought howls of protest online.

“That's disgusting and it's blood money,” blasts a post. “These people are pure scum.”

Writes another, “With all the crazy ‘family’ members, I'm beginning to think this young

Bobby's sister Tina and her son, Shayne, are making the series woman IS in a better place.”

According to a source, Brown's sisters Tina and Leolah and his nephew, Shayne, are shooting a reality show “and part of it will chronicle Bobbi Kristina fighting for her life.”

A source close to the project says “they have not shot video in the hospital,” but they have “regular debriefs at home on camera while they talk about the tragedy.”

Dad Bobby Brown won't be on the show

Relatives turning Bobbi Kristina's fight for life INTO REALITY TV SERIES

And a source adds the R&B star is “not happy” about the project.

Bobby's nephew, Jerod Brown, also refuses to get involved with the series, which is being shot as a pilot that will be shipped to a network.

Bobbi Kristina was found by a friend submerged in a bathtub on Jan. 31.

As GLOBE reported in the Feb. 23 issue, she had been underwater for several minutes and “was left with very little brain activity.”

Her condition was grim, say sources.

Doctors tried to bring her out of a medically induced coma. But she suffered seizures and the attempt failed.

Anguished family members have been at her side constantly, praying for her recovery.

But the man she claimed was her husband, Nick Gordon, has been banned by Brown, who insists there is no marriage certificate.

Now, Whitney's fans are livid over the transparent attempt by Brown's family members to cash in on Bobbi Kristina's heartbreak. They vow to shun the show.

“I wouldn't waste my time watching it, because this is as sick as they can get – and greedy too,” says an Internet post.

Rages another post, “Reprehensible, these aren't people, they're degenerates, the lowest of the low.”

jnelson@globeff.com

Tina once gave an interview saying she had smoked crack with drug-ravaged Whitney, who drowned in a Beverly Hills hotel bathtub after doing cocaine on Feb. 11, 2012.

Tragedy

Tina and her son, Shayne, also fought at a hotel near the hospital where Bobbi Kristina was being kept on a ventilator after the tragedy at her Roswell, Ga., home.

Meanwhile, Brown's attorney insists the 46-year-old singer will not be part of the show.

E-MAIL SCANDAL

WORLD EXCLUSIVE

WHITE HOUSE

HILLARY CLINTON's secret e-mails are loaded with bombshell revelations about her political ambitions and shocking private life that will torpedo any dreams she has of becoming America's first woman President, say sources.

Hillary has reluctantly released 55,000 pages of online messages after a public furor. But sources say she's holding back e-mails detailing:

- Her close relationship with an accused terrorist.
- Payments she took from money-men who fund terrorism.
- The national security secrets she revealed that put American lives at risk.

Plus, the damning messages from hdr22@clintonemail.com contain scandalous kinky love letters to a lesbian lover and the stunning truth about her sham marriage to Bill.

"Hillary's close ties to an accused terrorist alone will definitely derail her White House bid," says a Washington insider. "But there is so much more."

"She has been caught lying to the American people so often – the word transparency isn't in her vocabulary. "No one can trust her."

Instead of using a secure, State Department account, secretive Hillary chose to have a private computer server and e-mail system installed at her New York home when President Obama appointed her Secretary of State.

This gave her complete control over her messages.

And it's no wonder she wanted to hide her e-mails.

Some reveal her as a longtime close friend of former Egyptian President Mohammed Morsi, who spoke at a Clinton-sponsored think tank in 2012 and is "an accused terrorist," says the source.

"Morsi's facing charges of spying and ordering 'terror attacks' in Egypt – and could face the death penalty if convicted."

His wife, Naglaa Mahmoud, admits she and her hubby have been friends of the Clintons since the '80s. Now SHE is also threatening to reveal shocking communications between Hillary and Morsi.

"The conversations are all recorded," Mahmoud reveals. "I have between my fingers a treasure trove of secrets – and Mrs. Clinton fears my wrath."

One person who has seen some of the messages, says money is a key element.

The source says Hillary's e-mails show the Clinton family foundation had no qualms about accepting millions of dollars from foreign money-men, including Saudi Arabians. The donors probably expect favorable treatment from her in the future, a source says.

Yet as Secretary of State she admitted these cash-rich influence peddlers also funnel funds to terrorists.

"Donors in Saudi Arabia constitute the most significant source of funding to Sunni terrorist groups worldwide," she said.

Charges Ron Fournier of the National Journal, "Hillary's actions are sleazy and stupid."

"Sleazy because her foundation takes money from countries that fund terrorism. Stupid because it plays into a decades-old knock on the Clintons: They'll cut any corner for campaign cash."

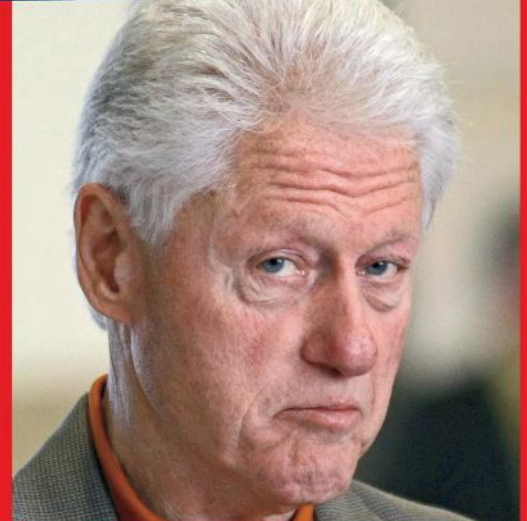

Insiders claim the damning e-mails also rip the lid off her shocking secret life – including the total collapse of her marriage to former President Bill Clinton three years ago and intimate details of her affair with a lesbian lover.

"We've learned that some of the love letters are quite kinky," says a source. "Hillary has naturally been very discreet, keeping her lover out of the spotlight, sharing their time very privately."

"Her e-mails show they don't go out to restaurants and seldom travel

Hillary's secret e-mails are a prime target for hackers together because she knows that on government planes, careful logs are kept of who is on board.

"But it is clearly a passionate affair."

The messages also admit that her marriage to Bill is a complete sham.

"She confesses the marriage has always been a business arrangement," adds the source. "They have both gotten the power and fame they craved since childhood out of it."

"But love and faithfulness was never in the cards. The e-mails reveal Hillary is still in business with Bill.

"She admits to her friends and advisors she still needs him to win the presidency and will continue the sham marriage forever to get his help to make it back to the White House."

But Hillary's brazen use of a private e-mail account also shows how irresponsible she is with America's secrets. Blasts Fournier, "Clinton exposed confidential and potentially dangerous information to a non-secure, commercial e-mail system.

"She gave Chinese spies a better shot at reading her e-mails than U.S. taxpayers." Even worse, she put American lives at risk – at home and overseas.

"Her e-mails were prime targets for hacking," says the insider. "Yet she discussed in detail all aspects of her work as Secretary of State, from foreign policy, to troop movements to sensitive secret peace-making negotiations.

"That could have spelled disaster for the country." But the tens of thousands of e-mails she "handpicked for release" don't tell the whole story, charges another Washington source.

"Hillary Clinton must think we're all suckers," the source declares.

"There's no way she'll release everything. Where are all the other tens of thousands of e-mails she's still hiding?" Adds the insider, "This scandal makes it clear Hillary can't be trusted and will never be President."

EVIL O.J. SIMPSON'S AMPUTATION HORROR

PRISON inmate O.J. Simpson is terrified he'll die behind bars – confined to a wheelchair after losing his legs, his former manager reveals!

Rotting away in Nevada's Correctional Center since December 2008 for armed robbery and kidnapping, the disgraced 67-year-old NFL star's life is pure hell. His damaged knees have him in agony and he's terrified his deadly diabetes will lead to the amputation of his legs.

According to his ex-manager, Norman Pardo, Simpson, who was sentenced to nine to 33 years, "doesn't think he's leaving prison until he's dead."

After being held civilly liable for the 1994 murders of his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend, Ron Goldman, the brute got two knee replacement operations, which resulted in a massive "bone infection," says Pardo. "It was a hell of a mess."

Now the 340-pound former jock-turned-eating-machine needs a cane to walk and his knees can "swell up like a balloon," says a source. His problems are worsened by diabetes, which causes nerve damage and hampers the body's ability to heal and fight infection.

In fact, Pardo is "worried about him having his legs cut off due to the infections."

The once brash Simpson has turned into a whiner behind bars. He complained to a fellow inmate about getting "mediocre health care" in the slammer saying, "it really p*$$@ me off because I have the money to go to any specialist in the world, but they won't let me leave to get help."

But Simpson, once branded The Most

Hated Man in America after beating the rap for Nicole's murder, isn't getting much sympathy.

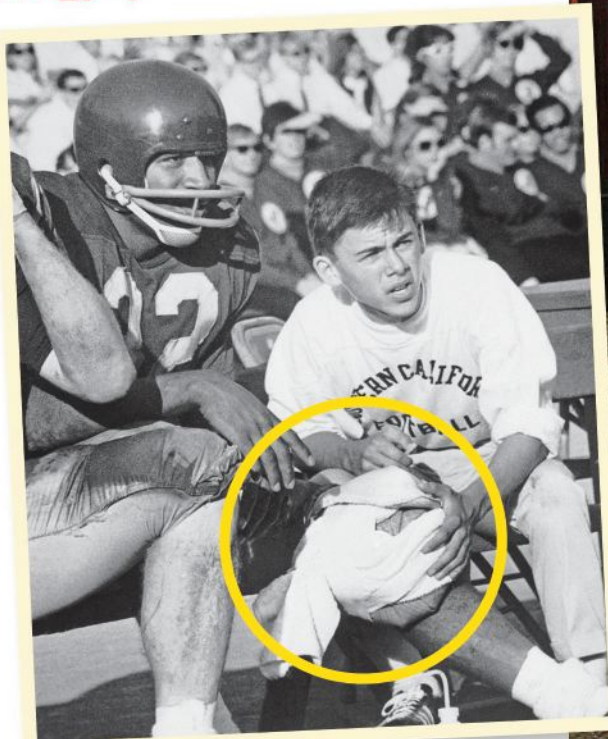

"He's not able to walk? Shame. His ex-wife isn't able to breathe," says one blogger. Another Internet poster fumes, "There's not enough bad in the world to heap on this creep." And a third taunts, "Lose some weight, that might help!"

A recent report says the monster fears he'll be confined to a wheelchair when he eventually gets out of prison, but his pal claims the situation is far worse.

"He's more worried about leaving in a box, not a wheelchair," says Pardo.

ACTRESS RUMER WILLIS has banned mom DEMI MOORE from the audience at the newest edition of Dancing with the Stars. But the Ghost beauty is refusing to listen. And Demi's told her 26-year-old daughter she'll be attending...whether she likes it or not! "Rumer is furious," dishes a pal. "She doesn't want her mom hogging the limelight. It's her chance to make a name for herself - but Demi is going to ruin it by sitting right in the front row where the TV cameras can focus firmly on her." Worse still, Demi, 52, has the hots for Rumer's 28-year-old 'DWTS' partner VAL CHMERKOVSKIY. And suddenly she seems to have forgotten all about her boyfriend of more than a year, drummer SEAN FRIDAY, 28, from the band Dead Sara. "Demi adores Val," says the insider. Much to Rumer's annoyance, the toyboy-chasing cougar keeps dropping by unannounced at the dance studio where the pair are rehearsing. "She just shows up," says the source. "It's VERY embarrassing because Demi can't stop flirting with Val and keeps wanting to dance with him. She won't give Rumer any space. It's causing a lot of tension between them."

Former House star OLIVIA WILDE says boyfriend JASON SUDEIKIS loves everything she cooks...but it's only because he has no taste buds! "I have the easiest audience in the world," admits the 30-year-old hottie. "My fiance has no sense of smell - he was born without it - so he thinks everything I cook tastes amazing. It really builds my confidence."

SLIM PICKINGS

She recently confirmed that she has Type 2 diabetes, but TV cook PAULA DEEN isn't about to give up her favorite comfort food. The 68-year-old is bringing out a book of healthy recipes, including reduced calorie versions of some of her classic southern dishes. And after dropping 40 pounds, she insists her condition "is not a death sentence." Paula Deen Cuts the Fat is released on Sept. 8.

HUGH'S SHAME

Wolverine star HUGH JACKMAN is still haunted by the time he wet himself on stage. "It was the most embarrassing moment of my life," he admits. Hugh, 46, was appearing in Beauty and the Beast in Australia when he suddenly realized that he needed the bathroom. But he still had a very energetic song to perform before he could get off stage. "I was very exposed in red tights," he recalls. "I was singing and peeing my pants!" Guess that's what you call making a splash!

I like the idea of me sitting on a chair with a table, maybe a drink or two, and just talking about my life." I bet she don't get no respect...

SECRET WEDDING

Is SOFIA VERGARA about to elope? The 42-year-old beauty recently got engaged to True Blood hunk JOE MANGANIELLO, 38, and is said to be in a rush tie the knot. The couple were spotted checking out a possible posh venue, The Breakers resort in Palm Beach. But their Modern Family buddy JULIE BOWEN wouldn't be surprised if they slipped away somewhere quiet and got married. "They're either gonna run away and elope or it's gonna be 1,000 people," she disclosed.

And she's devastated Nick, 34, recently started dating MICHAEL STRAHAN and EDDIE MURPHY's ex NICOLE MURPHY, 47. "Mariah still loves Nick," dishes an insider. "She hates being alone and single."

SAY WHAT

The Fatal Attraction star, 67, reveals her beloved mother, BETTINE, who passed away recently, "drifted off...peacefully in her sleep," at age 90, "with her devoted dogs, Lizzie and The Pudding, lying beside her." Bettine was an animal lover, who "always had a posse of dogs following her around," says Glenn. And she even had a gorilla named after her at New York's Bronx Zoo. She sounds a great lady.

TAXING TIME

He may be worth $200 million, but even ROBERT DE NIRO can't remember to pay his taxes on time. The legendary actor, 71, was slapped with a $6.4 million lien by Uncle Sam resulting from his 2013 tax return. And according to his rep, it was all a terrible mistake because the Internal Revenue Service sent the paperwork to the wrong address. Anyway, the embarrassed Godfather star quickly wrote a check and had it hand delivered to the tax office. HAIR-RAISING

Good Wife star JULIANNA MARGULIES always looks great on the hit legal drama. But did you know she wears a wig? And get this, it costs $10,000! "My own hair is curly," says the 48-year-old former ER star. And the show's producers wanted her character to have straight "very coiffed" hair. "We get a new wig every season," she admits. Glad the show is making big bucks!

DEBBIE REYNOLDS GIVES ADVICE FROM THE HEART

I hate my son's baby mama

Q: Our 22-year-old son got his girlfriend pregnant, and she had the baby over the holidays. They moved in with us, and the living situation is intolerable. The baby is adorable, but his mother has no idea how to raise a child. And she bristles at every suggestion I make - including getting him vaccinated because she believes vaccinations cause autism. I can't stand her, but my son and she would be on the streets without us. My husband is so frustrated, he barely spends any time at home. I'm at the end of my rope. Help!

- W.F., PORTAGE, IND.

A: The new family should be out on their own. Help your son get an apartment. If he's working, give him some extra money for it. If not, they may qualify for public housing. They need to raise their baby the way they want. Your job as grandparents is to love them and help when you're asked.

Tough to swallow

Q: My brother asked me if my wife and I could show a couple of his friends around town when they came to visit our area. I said yes, but I shouldn't have spoken so fast. We took the couple to a nice restaurant, and they ordered the most expensive items on the menu and a pricey bottle of wine. When the bill came, the husband said he'd forgotten his wallet. I was plenty peeved, but what could I do? The meal cost nearly $200, which my wife and I can ill afford. My wife is now insisting that I get my brother to reimburse me for his friends' portion of the bill, which is about $140. But my brother has treated us to plenty of meals and I hate asking

My hubby has turned into a health nut

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Q: My husband suffered a minor heart attack last year, so he has totally adjusted his eating habits and lifestyle. He rises early to exercise, eats mostly whole, organic foods, stopped drinking and goes to bed early. While I commend him for putting his health first, it's also changed our relationship. I still enjoy wolfing down pizza, tying one on and staying up late. Fortunately, I do these things in moderation and have been blessed with excellent health. In fact, I'm often told I look 10 years younger than my age (45). But my husband has become a real stick in the mud with his near-obsessive health concerns. What's a wife to do?

- U.H., ELSINORE VALLEY, CALIF.

A: Eat all you want. Your eating and drinking habits will age you so you catch up with your husband. It doesn't seem as though he minds your unhealthy habits, so you shouldn't mind his healthy ones. Find some fun activities you can do together, like going out for a night of dancing, which is good exercise, too.

A few words for...Zelda Williams

ROBIN WILLIAMS was a national treasure with a talent like no other. When he took his own life last summer, the whole world was saddened and stunned. Suicide is such a tragic thing, especially when it's someone you love. Robin's children will no doubt spend their lives recovering from this loss. But you have to admire how his 25-year-old daughter Zelda is handling her grief. She's decided to honor her father's legacy by working for his favorite charities. Working for the less fortunate is a very constructive way to help yourself, and I'm sure Robin would be very proud of her. Everyone handles loss in his or her own personal way. Zelda is choosing to spend her time helping others, which is a terrific way to honor her father. Many will continue to benefit from Robin's spirit because of Zelda's efforts.

him. What do you think?

- R.P., PHOENIX, ARIZ.

A: Be a sport. Even though you can't afford the luxury, it's a cheap lesson. The next time you entertain, make sure you choose a restaurant that you can afford. And you may want to sort out how you're going to split the bill before you eat. Do let your brother know what happened. Maybe he'll make it up to you someday.

How can we juggle careers and family?

Q: My wife and I have decided the time has come for us to start a family, but we are struggling over logistics. She is a junior partner in a prestigious law firm while I teach middle school science. Obviously, she is the main breadwinner in our family and wants to resume her career as soon as possible after giving birth. This would make me as a stay-at-home dad. I really enjoy my career, which includes coaching the boys' soccer team, and I don't want to drop everything to play Mr. Mom. Yet neither of us wants us to be absentee parents whose kids are raised by nannies. We're really butting heads over this. Maybe you can help.

- T.R., WASHINGTON, D.C.

A: When you make plans, God laughs. Even if you schedule a good time for the baby's birth, the little one may have other ideas. Meanwhile, you can do what millions of other couples like you do - learn to juggle your careers and family life. Babies take up a lot of time and energy, but they're worth it.

The Royal Family has been rocked by new charges involving the Nazis and their evil leader, Adolf Hitler

CHARLES & CAMILLA
WHAT THEY'RE HIDING

QUEEN ELIZABETH LIVID

ROYAL NAZI SHAME

QUEEN Elizabeth is reeling with shock and outrage over scandalous charges a member of the Royal Family was a traitorous turncoat who supported Hitler and the Nazis – and her beloved father and her eldest son covered up the shame.

The explosive revelations come from secret World War II documents and a shocking new book, 17 Carnations: The Royals, The Nazis and the Biggest Cover-Up in History, by Andrew Morton, who wrote a biography of the late Princess Diana.

Sources say damning disclosures rocking the Palace include:

- Elizabeth's uncle King Edward VIII, who shamefully abdicated the Throne to marry American divorcee Wallis Simpson, idolized Hitler and hoped Germany would bomb England to its knees during World War II.

- Elizabeth's father, George, who took the crown and became King George VI, masterminded a cover-up of Edward's shocking betrayal.

- Prince Charles – and his wife Camilla – knew about Edward's traitorous ways and Charles ordered the evidence destroyed.

Palace insiders say the 88-year-old Queen was in the dark about the true depths of her uncle's treachery. She was horrified when aides informed her of the charges in Morton's book.

"What she learned about her uncle Edward left her in a fury," an insider tells GLOBE.

"When she was a young girl, Elizabeth was told Palace gossip about the Duke being a Nazi sympathizer at the height of the war was false.

"But the rumors wouldn't go away. Later, when she finally learned the truth, it came as a real blow. She had been so fond of her uncle before he abdicated and disappeared from her life."

But she never knew her beloved father was behind the desperate cover-up to keep the public from learning about Edward's links to the murderous Nazi regime, says the insider.

Until Morton dredged up the scandal, Charles and Camilla believed the family's Nazi shame was "dead and buried," says a source.

Charles had thoroughly researched Edward's links to Hitler and tried to pass it off as "ancient history," say friends.

"He knows even more than Morton," says the source. "Years ago, Charles pored over other secret documents and correspondence about Edward's betrayal. "Then he ordered it all to be destroyed."

But sources say the Morton book may trigger a chain reaction that could permanently damage the crown.

"Edward's whole story of giving up the Throne for the love of Wallis is a romantic sham," says the source. "He deeply resented being forced to abdicate. He eagerly anticipated the moment when Hitler would return him to England as King – and tried to make it happen."

Following his 1936 abdication, Edward became the Duke of Windsor. He was banished from Britain and given a lavish allowance to continue his debauched lifestyle in France.

He became extremely close to Hitler, whom he called "a very great man."

Edward was such a Nazi booster, the German madman planned to make him Britain's puppet-king after the island nation surrendered, says the book.

As for Edward's wicked wife, "some even suspected that Wallis was a Nazi spy," writes the author. She was said to have passed secrets to Hitler's henchmen and been the lover of Nazi diplomat Joachim von Ribbentrop, who wooed her by sending 17 carnations daily.

Edward and Wallis visited and socialized with Hitler and other Nazi bigwigs while openly voicing support for German plans for world domination, charges the book.

U.S. ambassadors who met the disgraceful couple in Spain and Portugal were alarmed at how "indiscreet and outspoken against the British government" the pair were, says the book.

Edward even supported the bombing of Britain – including the London Blitz – that killed so many, according to German files Morton found. He thought the air raids would force Britain to surrender and make him King again.

The Duke's wartime behavior was so damning, it was reportedly covered up by his estranged brother, George.

Suspected Nazi spy Wallis Simpson and her royal hubby visited Hitler in October 1937

Sources say George enlisted the help of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Allies' military leader Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

The men felt Edward's betrayal was an "unexploded bomb" that could destroy the monarchy.

All records documenting his treason were ordered destroyed, says the book.

"The secret papers painted an astonishing portrait of a man who was disaffected with his position, disloyal to his family and unpatriotic to his country," writes Morton.

"Taken at face value, the Duke was speaking high treason."

Morton's disclosures have also rocked Prince William, who is terribly ashamed of the skeletons in his family's closet. Officials briefed him about the new book during his visit to China, where he was hoping to persuade Communist leaders to abolish the ivory trade and end the slaughter of elephants.

His pregnant wife, Kate, 33, is just as horrified as her husband, say insiders. "She's worried that the stress and fallout from the scandal will send the Queen, whose health is fragile, into a downward spiral."

Meanwhile, the scandal has the Royal Family reeling with humiliation. Says the insider, "They thought this was all forgotten and covered up 70 years ago, but this damning dossier has come back to haunt them with a vengeance."

THE barbaric ISIS terrorist known as Jihadi John – who beheaded helpless Americans on video tape – has been identified as a British computer nerd who grew up in a middle class London neighborhood!

Now, investigators are hot on the trail of the butcher, whose real name is Mohammed Emwazi, and are piecing together his dark history of hatred and violence, which stems back to his childhood.

The murderous Muslim horrified the world in August when he used a knife to behead helplessly bound American journalist James Foley in a video beamed around the globe.

Dressed in black with all but his eyes hidden, the coward continued his gory crusade for the Islamic State (ISIS) in subsequent weeks, appearing in videos involving the stomach-churning decapitations of two more innocent journalist – including American Steven Sotloff – along with three kind-hearted aid workers and 21 Syrian soldiers.

The atrocities prompted the U.S. government to put a $10 million price on his head.

‘Cold loner’

“It’s important we send a powerful message to the world that the United States will work tirelessly to ensure that the deaths of these beloved journalists do not go unpunished,” proclaims U.S. Senator Marco Rubio.

Even the fiend’s own terrorist compatriots call Emwazi a “cold loner.” And a former Muslim friend declares, “He tries to paint himself as devout, but he doesn’t know the meaning of the word.”

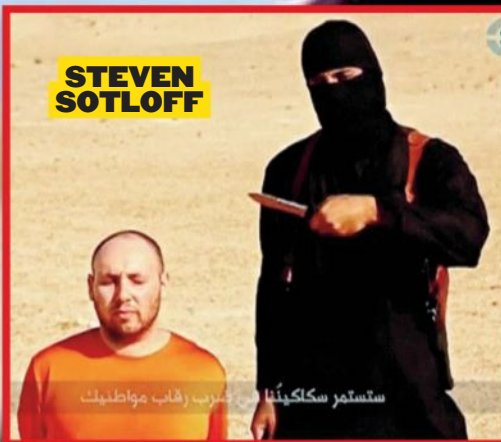

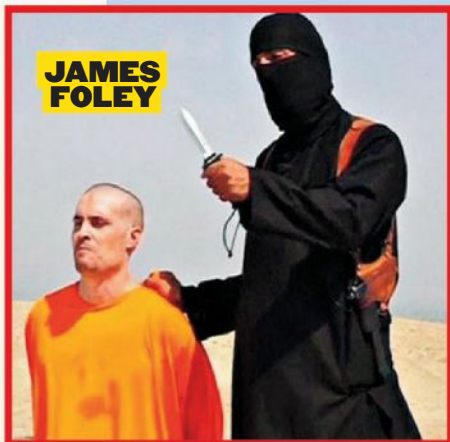

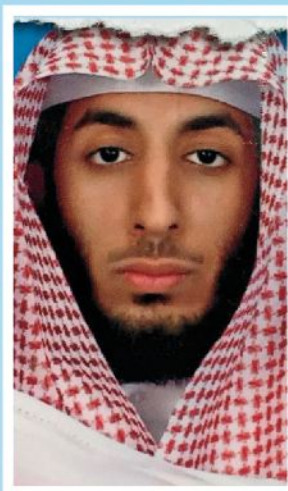

Emwazi, 26, was born in Kuwait and moved to Britain when he was age 6. Shockingly, his family of eight enjoyed refugee status and lived on welfare for 20 years, costing taxpayers a whopping $613,000. Nicknamed Little Mo by British buddies, Emwazi was ridiculed by other kids for being skinny – and one of his teachers reveals he had anger management issues and saw a therapist.

“He had a very aggressive nature and would not be pushed around,” says a childhood friend.

Another former pal adds

Little Mo smoked pot and drank vodka as a teen – even though boozing is forbidden in Islam. And a onetime classmate recalls how the budding terrorist reacted when learning in school about Nazi plans to exterminate all the Jews.

“I heard Mohammed mutter, ‘Good. They deserve it,’ ” says the classmate. “He really meant it. He absolutely hated Jews and blamed them for the plight of the Muslims.”

Incredibly, a former boss in Kuwait once lauded the cruel killer for being “very good with people.”

When Jihadi John shot to infamy behind his masked face, a former friend found the beast’s eyes chillingly familiar.

“It sent a shiver down my spine,” says the friend. “Mohammed has very distinctive, dark eyes that are inset deep into his skull. When I saw the story saying he was Jihadi John, I felt physically sick. I couldn’t believe someone I had been so close to had turned so evil.”

Emwazi graduated from the University of Westminster with a degree in computer programming in 2009 but later ran with a gang that used Tasers to rob rich people. And in 2011, he stood trial twice for trying to sell stolen bikes on eBay.

In recent years, the bloodthirsty brute became radicalized by notorious London-based terrorist Mohammed Ahmed Mohamed and tried to join the al-Qaeda-linked group al-Shabaab in Somalia but was stopped by British authorities. In 2013, he managed to slip away to Syria, where he completed his transformation from a creepy kid into a sadistic killer who’s been declared the World’s Most Wanted Man.

Following Emwazi’s string of horrifying decapitations, people are now calling for HIS head.

Teenager Bethany Haines, the daughter of slain Scottish aid worker David Haines, says, “I think the families will feel closure and relief once there’s a bullet between his eyes.”

Meanwhile, an Internet blogger suggests, “Find the animal, toy with him for a few days or weeks, then decapitate him with a dull, rusty saw...slowly.”

And law enforcement officials say Jihadi John will learn the hard way – just like Osama bin Laden – that you can run from American justice, but you can’t hide.

DEAD OR ALIVE

CRUEL parents Randall and Mary Vaughn were each clobbered with 35-year sentences for murdering 5-year-old Alexa by forcing her to gulp down fatal amounts of grape soda and water as a punishment for sipping one of their drinks.

The judge handed out the sentences after Randall, 41, and Mary, 58, pleaded guilty to the little girl's horrific death from fatal brain swelling in Surgoinsville, Tenn.

Attorney Gen. Berkeley Bell described the sweet girl's terrible torment as she died from acute fluid intoxication – stressing that biological father Randall and stepmom Mary stood by as Alexa wailed in agony and finally passed out before taking her to the hospital.

Water intoxicated

He says the “child as a form of punishment was forced to drink grape drinks as well as a great deal of water to the point that her body became water intoxicated.

“They also failed to take care of the child once she was injured,” standing by as she “started exhibiting serious symptoms... was screaming out in pain, went into a paralyzed state and became unconscious.”

Finally hours later, they took her to the hospital. But it was too late. The huge intake of liquid “led to her brain swelling and all of her systems shutting down, and to her eventual brain death” two days later on Jan. 3, 2012.

Bell says Alexa had heartlessly been forced to gulp more than 68 ounces of liquid – including more than four 12-ounce grape sodas – in just two hours.

The pair had inflicted the fatal punishment because Alexa had dared to sip one of her stepmother's sodas without permission, he says.

Cops also found the child had suffered other abuse at the hands of the vicious Vaughns. The autopsy revealed Alexa had bruises and scratches on her face, neck, body and legs from beatings.

Still it took two years of investi-

The pair were finally arrested and each charged with first degree murder, aggravated child abuse and aggravated child neglect.

They were allowed to each plead down to second degree murder and aggravated child neglect to spare Alexa's five siblings, ranging in age from 7 to 17 years, from being dragged through an emotionally painful trial.

The surviving children are now in foster care.

District Attorney Dan Armstrong says “I’m very satisfied” with the verdict because “it’s effectively a life sentence and I’ve spared these children because they would have been part of our proof.”

Alexa's biological mom Katie

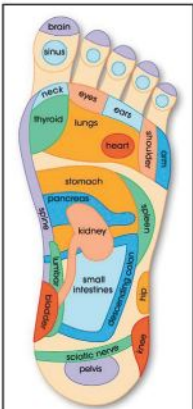

Linboom says waiting for lawmen to build a strong case against the Vaughns was agonizing.

“A million times I cried and screamed and was angry that something hadn't been done yet,” she says.

“I wanted them to be held responsible for what they had done to her. She was only five – you know she couldn't fight back.

“She didn't deserve what she got.”

56 years after fatal airplane tragedy...

NEW FED PROBE INTO BUDDY HOLLY CRASH!

Expert insists pilot error DIDN'T kill rock legend

BUDDY HOLLY'S tragic death in a plane crash 56 years ago was blamed on pilot error – but a federal agency is now reopening the investigation!

Along with the 22-year-old rock pioneer, the Feb. 3, 1959 wreck also killed performers Ritchie Valens and the Big Bopper, J.P. Richardson. The tragedy was immortalized as “the day the music died” in Don McLean’s 1971 megahit single American Pie.

Initially, the government’s Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) cited bad weather and the inexperience of 21-year-old pilot Roger Peterson as the causes for the Beech Bonanza aircraft’s plunge to Earth.

Now, veteran pilot L.J. Coon believes “other issues” were involved – and convinced the National Transportation Safety Board to have another look.

Coon questions whether faulty rudder controls, a weight imbalance, fuel gauge issues, carburetor induction icing and other possible problems may have been factors in the crash.

He thinks information gleaned from a new investigation could “save lives” in future flights and clear the name of the pilot, who also perished. “I believe the NTSB will review pilot Peterson’s actions...and realize heroic efforts took place,” declares Coon.

Holly, Valens, 17, and Richardson, 28, were on tour across the Midwest when they decided to fly from a show in Clear Lake, Iowa, to Fargo, N.D., because their tour bus had no heater and was prone to breaking down.

Future country legend Waylon Jennings, who played bass in Holly’s band, famously gave up his seat to the flu-stricken Big Bopper. La Bamba singer Valens unluckily won a coin toss against Holly’s guitar player, Tommy Allsup, for the last seat on the doomed flight.

The CAB re-report notes that Peterson was not certified to fly on instruments, which became necessary due to high winds, falling snow and darkness.

Investigators blamed Peterson for his “unwise decision” to take off in conditions requiring the use of instruments.

It’s unclear what, if anything, a new investigation might reveal – but it’s not the first time the legendary crash has been revisited. Rumors persisted for years Richardson had been found with gunshot wounds in his body. At the request of his son, the Big Bopper’s remains were exhumed in 2007, but there was no evidence he’d been shot.

Meanwhile, Holly’s siblings see no reason to open a new investigation.

“I think they ought to just leave it alone,” says Buddy’s brother, Travis. “I don’t think they need to be looking into it again.”

'TOP MODEL' IS CURSED!

SUPERMODEL wannabes with dreams of getting a shot at stardom on America's Next Top Model may want to think twice before going on the show – because contestants have been hit with tragedy.

And after Season 21 contestant Mirjana Puhar was shot dead in a triple homicide on Feb. 24, people are now wondering if the hit reality show is cursed!

Disaster

Tyra Banks

The aspiring model, 19, was killed with her boyfriend and another man in what cops suspect was a drug-related home invasion. She is just the latest contestant to meet disaster following an appearance on ANTM, which can have more than one "season" in a 12-month span.

Angelea Preston made the final three for the Season 17 All-Stars competition, but was booted after producers claimed she'd been working as an escort. She's since launched a $3 million lawsuit against show host/producer Tyra Banks, insisting she was unjustly denied a shot at the top prize.

But Preston's problems pale in comparison to some ANTM players.

Season 8's Renee Alway, 28, is now modeling prison attire after being sentenced to 12 years on four felony burglary counts stemming from a 2013 incident.

Her fellow competitor, Jael Strauss, went from the runway to six years of drug addiction and homelessness before TV shrink Dr. Phil finally convinced her to seek help.

And Lisa D'Amato landed on Dr. Drew's reality rehab show for booze, pot, amphetamine, cocaine and mushroom addiction following her stint on Season 5.

One expert believes ANTM sets up the star-struck stunners for a big fall. "Shows that focus on beauty and physique often reinforce poor coping strategies such as food restriction and drug and alcohol abuse because those behaviors provide a competitive edge in the short term," notes psychologist Shannon Hanrahan.

"But the negative long-term effects are not sufficiently managed."

Strauss and D'Amato have managed to pick up the pieces of their shattered lives, but, sadly, Puhar will never even get the chance. Cops say the Serbia-born war refugee was slaughtered as she opened the door of her beau's Charlotte, N.C. home.

In a joint statement, Banks and fellow ANTM producer Ken Mok say they are "deeply saddened" by the fate of "a vivacious and promising young woman."

Lulu was ga-ga for Bowie

FLING WITH BOWIE WAS REAL LULU!

BRITISH pop star Lulu still gets all stirred up when she thinks of David Bowie!

"His thighs were incredible," gushes the 66-year-old Scottish singer. "Long and slim but muscly. Not pumped up but powerful."

"They were strong even though he was emaciated at the time."

That time would be in 1974, when she and the Ziggy Stardust rock legend enjoyed a short-lived, but torrid, romance.

"We were so connected because of the music," says Lulu, best known for the hits Shout and To Sir, With Love.

"It was the personal stuff that was odd. Some of the conversations we had were insane."

Lulu, who was once married to the late Bee Gees brother Maurice Gibb, also rubbed elbows with the Beatles, Rolling Stones, Tom Jones and even Frank Sinatra. But Bowie, now 68, retains a very special place in her heart.

"Bowie is Mr. Charm," she says. "He really is something else."

CELL PHONES MAKE CHEATING IMPOSSIBLE

WILL SMITH admits he's always played romance for laughs in his movies...until now!

In his new film Focus, the Fresh Prince portrays Nicky Spurgeon, a sexy con man who gets thrown off his game by a gorgeous femme fatale played by Margot Robbie.

"This was one of the first times in my career where it was full-on, steamy, grown man-ness and emotion," Will reveals. "It was actually uncomfortable for me."

Smith, 46, has been married to second wife, actress Jada Pinkett, 43, since 1997. They have two children, son Jaden, 16, and daughter Willow, 14. He also has son Trey with first wife, Sheree Zampino.

In this interview with a freelance journalist, Smith talks about real love, winning awards and the most amazing person he's ever met.

Q: Your kids are stars in their own right nowadays. You and your wife have been criticized for throwing them into the entertainment machine too soon. Does that bother you?

A: The criticism hurts, I won't deny that. But my kids are the son and daughter of entertainers. I am not surprised they chose to follow the same path. They're pretty successful,

THE BIG INTERVIEW

which in turn makes Jada and myself very, very proud.

Q: Focus is about a brilliant con man. You ever been robbed?

A: Not really robbed, but pick-pocketed for sure. It happened in Vegas. And I've been told to steal something before, but I couldn't do it. I'm not a thief.

Q: How fun is it to be Will Smith?

A: I'm having a good time now. I feel a shift in my life and am starting to reflect more about who I am.

Q: Do you even know your daily schedule these days?

A: I have no idea what I do! I have a team around me that takes care of my daily schedule. I'm not making

Funnyman Will plays it sexy with Margot Robbie in a scene from Focus this up! But I don't mind. I carve out time for myself if I have to.

Q: Do you have the burning desire to win an Oscar?

A: I don't have any desire to win any award. I look at box office first, I always have. People on a Friday night decide how they spend their money. And if they spend it on you, that's a greater vote of confidence than any award.

Q: This movie shows that love can be a lie. What is your opinion on love?

A: Most people wear some sort of mask when they meet love for the first time. But you realize quickly that you can't love through a mask. There has to be a little bit of lying in the beginning, but eventually you have to take the mask off to experience real love.

Q: Your wife always says she loves your energy, loves to be around you.

A: Well, I could say the same thing about her. She's the most amazing person I have ever met in my life. She is a great partner, a wonderful mother, and she can kick my a too. She's in incredible shape (laughter).

Q: We live in a very advanced world of technology. Are you being more careful these days?

A: I take certain pictures off the iPhone nowadays. It's a new world we live in.

Q: Is there a plus side?

A: My son said to me three years ago that cheating is over. People can take pictures of you everywhere. Technology is forcing a transparency that will create better relationships.

OLDIES & GOODIES

TOOTHACHES always seem to strike on weekends or vacations when you just can't get to your dentist!

"The most common causes of toothache are cavities, fillings that have come loose, a cracked tooth, an abscess, infection at the gum line or sinus issues," says Florida dentist Dr. Larry Levine.

But you don't have to suffer until you can see your dentist. Here are some proven home remedies for tooth pain:

● Clove oil: Cloves contain a natural anesthetic that eases pain by numbing nerves. Put a few drops on a cotton ball and apply gently against the aching tooth until the pain goes away. Don't pour the oil into the mouth as it can make sensitive tissues worse. You can also place a whole clove or a pinch of the powdered spice on the tooth.

● Saltwater: Dissolve a teaspoon of salt in a cup of hot water to make a pain-killing mouthwash. Swish it around your mouth for 30 seconds before spitting it out. Saltwater cleans the area around the tooth and extracts the fluid that causes swelling.

● Ice: Place an ice cube in a plastic bag and wrap a thin towel around it. Apply to the aching tooth for about 15 minutes to numb the nerves. Frozen peas also work well.

● Gum: If you've broken a tooth or lost a filling, cover the area with softened chewing gum. Chew on the other side of your mouth to avoid further discomfort.

● Apply pressure: Acupressure can work wonders to deaden tooth pain. Press the spot down on the muscle beneath the webbed skin between your index finger and your thumb. The pain should subside in minutes.

● Vanilla extract: Like all alcohol-based remedies, this extract helps numb tooth pain. A shot of whiskey works well, too.

● Ibuprofen: Often toothaches are caused by swollen sinuses, so taking an anti-inflammatory drug may ease the pain, says Dr. Levine.

"These remedies are all OK for short-term relief," he adds. "But you need to see a professional as soon as you can, especially if you have unusual swelling or continued pain. You should also see your dentist regularly and get professional cleanings to prevent emergency situations."

New drug fights MS

➤ A NEW drug has been added to the arsenal of treatments to fight multiple sclerosis relapses by the Food and Drug Administration. Already being used in Europe, Canada and Australia, the medication Lemtrada "should generally be reserved for patients who've had an inadequate response to two or more drugs," says the manufacturer Genzyme. MS can cause pain, numbness, slurred speech, impaired vision, muscle weakness and neurological problems in 2.4 million victims around the world, including 400,000 Americans.

Implant reduces blood pressure

➤ A CLEVER paperclip-like stent called the Coupler can significantly lower blood pressure, researchers say. Installed in the groin area with a laparoscope under local anesthesia, the device allows blood flow between a high-pressure artery and a low-pressure vein. The stent works well in people whose risky high blood pressure is drug resistant and leads to fewer complications and hospitalizations. About 29 percent of patients suffer the main side effect, easily resolved swelling in the leg.

Running wards off Alzheimer's

➤ RUNNING more than 15 miles a week slashes the risk of dying from dreaded Alzheimer's disease, according to new research. In a 12-year study, Dr. Paul Williams of California's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory followed more than 153,000 runners and found those who jog 15.3 miles a week lowered their chances of getting Alzheimer's by 40 percent. Running 7.7 to 15.3 miles shrank the odds by 25 percent. Explains Williams, "exercise prevents brain shrinkage that occurs with age."

JULIE ANDREWS WILL NEVER SING AGAIN

HER gorgeous voice while playing singing nanny Maria rocketed her to stardom, but sadly, Julie Andrews can't carry a tune today after botched throat surgery.

In June 1997, docs removed non-cancerous nodules from her throat. But Andrews was devastated to learn her crystal-clear voice was ruined.

But like her other famous nanny character, feisty Mary Poppins, she bounced back, penning a series of 27 children's books with her 52-year-old daughter, Emma Walton Hamilton.

While she can't sing, she can still talk. The 79-year-old star voiced Gru's mom in 2010's animated hit Despicable Me. She also narrated the film Enchanted and was the Queen's voice in Shrek Forever After in 2010.

At the Oscars, Andrews got a huge ovation when she walked onstage following Lady Gaga's medley of Sound of Music tunes.

"You were amazing," Andrews gushed. "Dear Lady Gaga, thank you for that wonderful tribute. Oh my God, it really warmed my heart."

HEATHER

HEATHER MENZIES-URICH CANCER DRAMA

COURAGEOUS Heather Menzies-Urich, who played sweet Louisa von Trapp, beat deadly ovarian cancer but lost husband-actor Robert Urich to the terrible disease.

Now age 65, Heather shocked America and changed her Sound of Music image by baring all for an August 1973 Playboy spread.

That same year, she divorced first husband John Cluett. In 1975, Heather wed Spenser: For Hire star Urich.

She continued her career with roles on TV series like Bonanza, Alias Smith and Jones, and a 14-episode stint on Logan's Run in 1977 and '78.

Tragically, she and Urich were both diagnosed with cancer in the 1990s. Heather won her battle. Urich died at age 55 of rare synovial sarcoma, which is a cancer of the joints, in April 2002.

Mom to three kids she adopted with him, she now spearheads The Robert Urich Foundation for Cancer Research and Patient Care.

★★★★★★

THEATERS have been alive with The Sound of Music for 50 years since the movie musical about a nanny, who falls in love with the father of seven kids while trekking across the Alps, opened in March 1965. Here, GLOBE catches up with the cast of the blockbuster film, which was based on the adventures of the real-life singing von Trapp family, and reveals what the movies' stars are up to now.

- JIM NELSON

jnelson@globeff.com

CHRISTOPHER PLUMMER HATES VON TRAPP SAGA

A PRESTIGIOUS stage actor, Christopher Plummer hated his role as Captain von Trapp, the dad of seven kids, in the corny, sugary Hollywood production.

Today, the 85-year-old actor tells his character's story this way: "I used to be an angry, heavy-drinking young man, then a nun came, hit me over the head with a Hallmark card and everything changed."

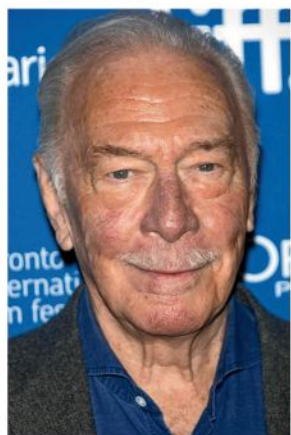

But the movie made Plummer a star and "filled the seats when I did theater work afterward," he grudgingly admits.

Since making "Music," he's appeared in scores of films and TV movies including Inside Daisy Clover, The Night of the Generals, The Man Who Would Be King, Somewhere in Time and National Treasure.

He was nominated for a Best Supporting Actor Oscar for his role in 2009's The Last Station, but lost. The following year, he won the Oscar for his role as a senior citizen who comes out as gay in the movie Beginners.

He's also got parts in four new movies that are either completed or in post-production, including Danny Collins, Remember, and Reds and Grays in which he voices King Gray.

Married three times, Plummer is father of actress Amanda, now 58, his daughter with Tammy Grimes, whom he divorced in 1960. He wed current wife Elaine Taylor in 1970.

CHARMIAN CARR beat out actresses Patty Duke, Sharon Tate and Mia Farrow to play "16 going on 17" Liesl von Trapp. But the plum role plunged her into a dark, emotional pit.

Now age 72, she reveals she "saw a therapist for many years" and took anti-depressants as a result of the role. "I was caught between being a child and an adult," she says. "The film never stopped for me - to the point where I didn't know if I was Charmian or Liesl." Even writing books Forever Liesl and Letters to Liesl couldn't help her escape the dark depression.

Her medications made her shake so much "people thought I had Parkinson's disease," she says. Finally in 2010, electromagnetic therapy enabled her to function without anti-depressants.

Despite her mental battles, she raised two daughters from a 14-year marriage to Jay Allen Brent that ended in 1991. In the '90s, her Encino, Calif., interior design firm helped create Michael Jackson's fairy-tale home at his Neverland Valley ranch.

Earning a Humanities degree from University of Southern California, Kym guested on TV shows like My Three Sons, Lost in Space, Family Affair, The Brady Bunch and The Waltons. She moved to Paris to model. While in the City of Lights, she earned an art history degree and met her French banker hubby Philippe L'Equibec. They wed in 1985 and now live in L.A.

DEBBIE TURNER IS IN FULL BLOOM

SOME Minneapolis-St. Paul area residents might be surprised to learn their florist, Debbie Turner Originals, played 6-year-old Marta in the classic flick! After making the blockbuster movie, she had just one other acting job - as a party guest in the 1979 film North Dallas Forty - and she blames the musical's goody-two-shoes reputation for wrecking her career. "You'd go to auditions and wouldn't get parts," says Debbie, now 58. "There were rumors people were told not to hire us because we were to be kept pure."

A California college grad and a West Coast ski champion, Debbie went to work at a ski resort, where she met aircraft engineer hubby Richard Larson and had four daughters. Eventually, she turned to flowers. Her floral design and event company was "preferred florist" for the 2008 Republican National Convention held in St. Paul.

THRILLER!

Michael Jackson's brave daughter battles back from suicide ordeal

DEVASTATED by family problems and the loss of her superstar father, Michael Jackson's daughter Paris has bounced back from her suicide ordeal – and is looking spectacular!

During a recent outing in L.A., Paris, sporting a whimsical Woodstock T-shirt, signaled her dark days are over by debuting a much lighter hair color and a temporary tattoo featuring two cherries hung dangling over a star on the back of her right hand.

"She looks so much better," reveals an eyewitness, who said the upbeat teen seemed not to have a care in the world as she ran errands and grabbed a takeout lunch. "Hopefully she's out of that dark place in her life."

Sources note the joyful image of Paris – who turns 17 next month – is a far cry from her bleak recent past.

She was crushed by her 50-year-old father's shocking June 25, 2009, death from a lethal drug overdose – a tragedy that nearly put Paris in an early grave, too.

In the early hours of June 5, 2013, her feelings of loneliness and hopelessness imploded. After slashing her wrists with a meat cleaver and swallowing 20 Motrin pills, she dialed a suicide hotline, which called 911.

Paris was rushed to the hospital and placed on a 72-hour psychiatric hold, eventually landing in a therapeutic boarding school in Utah.

Insiders reveal the heart-rending drama was "a cry for help."

"Paris never recovered from the death of her father," says a source. "She remembers him gaunt, drugged, dying – and the vision will haunt her forever."

"She was wracked with guilt that she couldn't save her dad."

Her torment was worsened by bickering between Jackson family members at their Calabasas, Calif., compound. That was followed by a bitter legal battle between her 84-year-old grandma, Katherine Jackson, and her dad's second wife, Debbie Rowe, 56.

The biological mother of both Paris and her older brother, Prince, 18, Rowe was seeking custody of the kids but failed. However, Paris did build a relationship with Rowe, who is not related to the girl's kid brother, Blanket, 13.

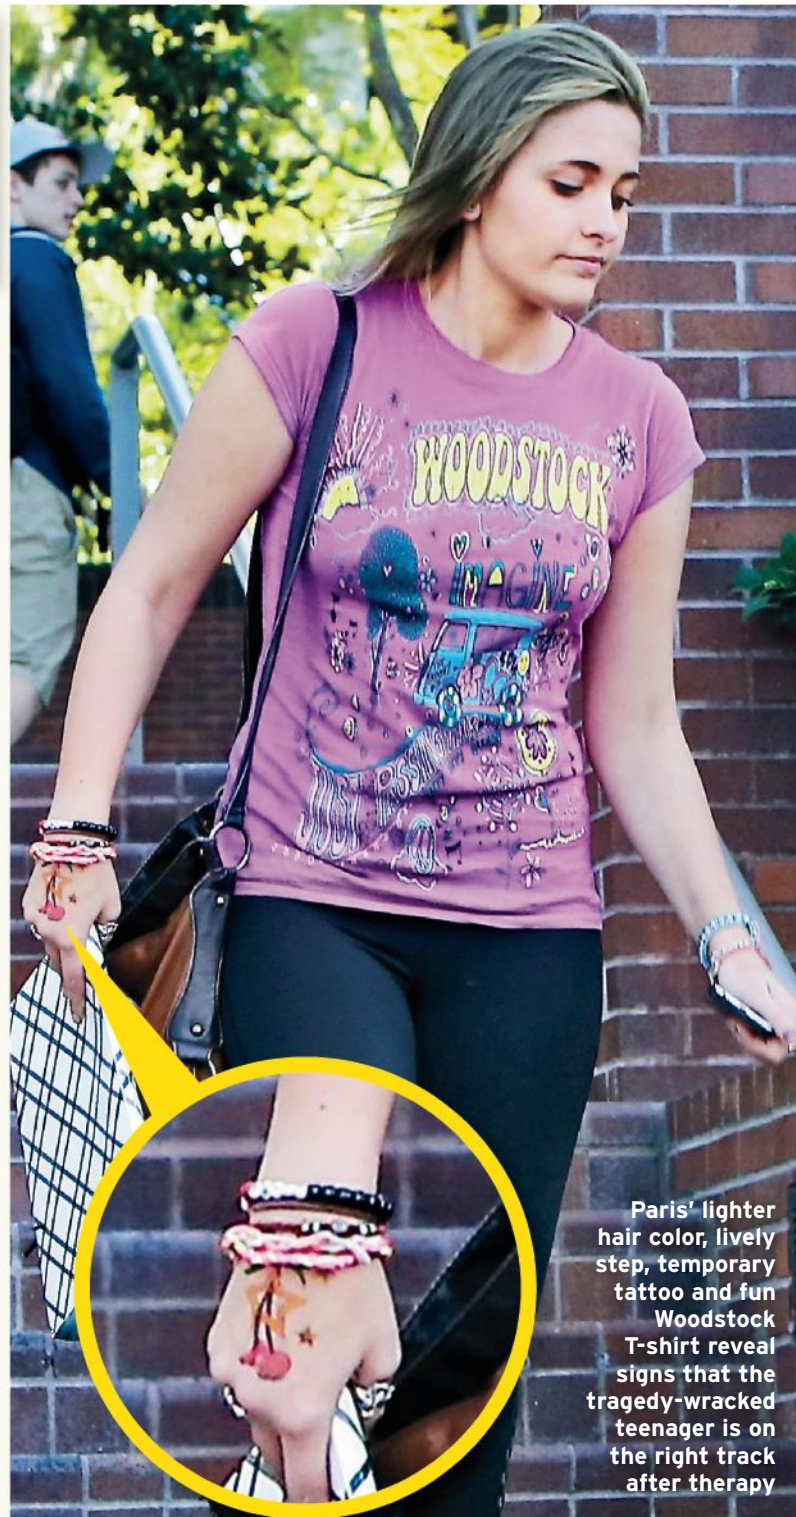

Now, eyewitnesses say the therapy Paris received at the school specializing in treating grief and depression appears to have worked. Says one onlooker, "It's good to see Paris looking so healthy and beautiful."

With a family that large, no wonder Rod is Forever Young! "Rod is really proud of his family and wants to show everybody that," says a friend. "It will show he's kept things together."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

For the week of March 23 – March 29

by Emily Hamer-West

ARIES March 21 - April 20

While taking advice is sometimes helpful, listen to your inner voice now. You alone know what you need and want – and the stars are steering you straight toward it! The weekend could bring a minor home repair that quickly becomes an opportunity to fix one of your domestic pet peeves! Look to someone close for advice about a health worry.

GEMINI May 22 - June 21

Get to work on anything you need to do while the moon is in Taurus early in the week, and you'll have time for fun pursuits later on. Although you're typically willing to lend a hand to a friend in a jam, this week it's risky to get involved, especially if it involves lending cash! Friday turns you into a domestic wizard – enjoy entertaining at home then.

LEO July 23 - August 23

A friend or relative's troubles aren't yours – and the planets warn you not to take them on! You'll find a way to gently disentangle yourself from the situation. If you're looking for work, think about ways to earn money from home or around your neighborhood. You could get an interesting offer under the Cancer moon that perfectly fulfills all your needs.

LIBRA September 23 - October 23

Don't let a lack of self-confidence keep you from pursuing your goals. Friends and strangers will recognize any efforts you make as worthy. Although your energy is high, avoid overdoing it physically, because this can drag down your mood – and you'll want to be cheerful for the special someone you meet under Saturday's Cancer moon!

SAGITTARIUS November 23 - December 21

Lately, you've been keeping your nose to the grindstone. It's time to break out and have some fun, Archer. Plan a midweek getaway under the Gemini moon with friends or your partner. Even better, plan the summer vacation you always wanted! Romance finds you on Sunday. Look for someone interesting at a place animals visit!

AQUARIUS January 21 - February 18

Venus turns you into a social butterfly, and you'll put your Aquarian charm on display for all to admire! You could get involved in a new volunteer effort, even becoming the mover and shaker behind a community-wide charity! Your partner feels a little neglected. Plan an evening for two Sunday to keep the home fires burning.

TAURUS April 21 - May 21

The past is over and the future yet to come, Bull, so why not live for today? Venus is nudging you to take an honest look at your life. Pay attention! New love waits right under your nose – you could be passing by your soul mate every day! The financial fear that's been keeping you awake nights will be settled soon – so just breathe, and relax!

CANCER June 22 - July 22

Even if you and your partner don't always see eye-to-eye, you can reach an understanding you can both live with about something that's kept you at odds lately. Putting this behind you frees you to move forward with plans for a vacation or family project you've been thinking about. The number 10 will be significant for you this week.

VIRGO August 24 - September 22

Not wanting to bother your partner with a worry is admirable – but shadowy Neptune makes it seem like you just don't care! Don't worry, the cosmos helps you soothe hurt feelings. Although you're tempted to indulge in your favorite foods and skip the gym, better to stick to your goals. They'll pay off big-time in renewed vitality and good looks!

SCORPIO October 24 - November 22

A dream is coming true – at least that's what it feels like when something wonderful happens after Jupiter meets Mercury. You could be floating along on a cloud all week long! Just try to keep your feet on the ground long enough to work out the details and make sure you get everything you deserve. Start a garden at home this weekend.

CAPRICORN December 22 - January 20

It feels you never have enough time to do what you want, but thinking about habits will open your eyes to ways you waste time on things that aren't very important. Stern Saturn steers you to the dreams you really want to accomplish – and brings the motivation to do them! Look at a purchase you made late last year – there's a refund coming your way!

PISCES February 19 - March 20

The planets align to unlock secrets super-shoppers can use to find bargains. If you're planning to buy something expensive, like appliances or even a new car, you'll find the lowest price now. Someone new in your neighborhood could become a dear friend – once you get past a small disagreement! Get plenty of sleep – you're prone to fatigue.

DIANE'S DEATH ROW DISGRACE!

GLOBE
BREAKING NEWS

Diane Sawyer got smacked by backlash for a report that let killer Emilia Carr (right) rant against society

CARR

Sawyer blasted for painting evil condemned killer as helpless victim

DIANE SAWYER has stirred up a hornets' nest by turning a cruel killer on Florida's Death Row into a poster girl for justice gone wrong.

On a segment of the ABC news magazine 20/20, Sawyer portrayed 30-year-old Emilia Carr, who slowly suffocated a mother of three and buried her in a shallow grave, as a victim much like the woman she killed in cold blood!

Sawyer's report drew a quick and angry response from murder victim Heather Strong's 53-year-old mother Carolyn, who fumes Carr "doesn't deserve to be a celebrity - she's a killer."

In February 2009, Strong's 26-year-old daughter was lured to a ramshackle mobile home in Marion County, Fla., with the promise of money from estranged husband Josh Fulgham, 33, who was Carr's lover.

Heather's husband Josh Fulgham

After she arrived, Heather was tied to a chair with duct tape and forced to sign a document giving Fulgham custody of their children. Then Carr, who was pregnant with Fulgham's baby, slipped a garbage bag over Heather's head and attempted to break the woman's neck. That failed, but the innocent waitress eventually suffocated.

Heather's body was dumped in a shallow grave on property Carr shared with her mother and two sisters. The corpse was found a month later.

Now Carr, who at 30 is one of the youngest women on Death Row in America, is proclaiming she was railroaded.

Firestorm

On her ABC report Hidden America: A New Nation of Women Behind Bars, 69-year-old Sawyer interviewed Carr at the Lowell Correctional Institution in Ocala. Carr declared her innocence. She was painted as a victim since she got a death sentence and Fulgham was put away for life - with the possibility of parole.

The firestorm of outrage exploded as soon as Sawyer's report aired. One Internet blogger wrote, "Shame on Diane Sawyer" while another Internet post called the episode "Just SICK!"

Now, the victim's mom just wants to witness Carr's execution.

"I can't help that Emilia is only 30 - my daughter will never be 30," she says. "Just like she saw my daughter take her last breath, I want to see her take hers."

COUGAR Susan Sarandon's love match with 31-years-younger table tennis entrepreneur Jonathan Bricklin is over, say sources!

The 68-year-old Thelma & Louise legend has been dating her boy toy lover for five years and insists the age gap never concerned her.

However, Sarandon signaled she and Bricklin, 37, are kaput when she popped up solo on Feb. 27 at the Goldene Kamera awards in Hamburg, Germany. At the gala, she picked up a lifetime achievement award.

An insider says Sarandon dumped her young hunk because she loathed having their lives filmed for Morgan Spurlock's AOL reality show Connected. The series was tracking six people and their partners for six months.

"It caused a lot of strain in the relationship," confides a source. "It's documented for the show that Susan breaks up with him because she doesn't want to be involved with the show. She says, 'You're a cast member. I'm not.' "

Sarandon's romance with ping pong beau Jonathan Bricklin has been tabled Sarandon was publicly dating Bricklin just a month after her December 2009 announcement that she'd ended her 23-year romance with Shawshank Redemption star Tim Robbins, who is 12 years her junior.

She said of Bricklin, "We don't live under the same roof - we're not an ordinary couple. 'It's the soul of the person that interests me. When you are in love, the question of age, sex and color no longer hold any importance.'"

The actress, who won an Oscar for Dead Man Walking, first met Bricklin in 2008 and invested in his ping pong themed Big Apple club SPiN, where she was often spotted.

"Susan was enamored with Jonathan since day one," says a friend of the actress. "When she put $50,000 into his nightclub, it gave her an excuse to hang out with him. It gave her deniability. When people saw them together, she could say, 'It's just a business meeting!' But I don't think she was fooling anyone." Now, he's a relic of her past.

SPARKS flew both on screen and off when elegant Audrey Hepburn teamed up with married leading man William Holden in the 1954 movie Sabrina.

Their sizzling romance was destined to crash and burn – but not because Holden was already hitched!

In fact, the serial cheater was in the habit of bringing his mistresses home to meet his wife Ardis, a stunning actress whose screen name was Brenda Marshall. As the mother of Holden's three children, Ardis typically looked the other way, confident that her straying husband would always come back to her.

'Wife's worst nightmare'

But Audrey had a different effect. The cultured young beauty had captivated Holden and was a "wife's worst nightmare," according to author Edward Epstein, who rips the lid off the scandalous affair in his new book Audrey and Bill.

"Ardis' heart must have frozen at the sight of her," continues Epstein. "Here was this radiant creature, 15 years younger than she, who wasn't merely beautiful but had unique qualities of class and an almost spiritual grace."

"The others Bill had brought home were beautiful, but not like this."

As soon as Audrey left, Ardis went in "attack mode" and forbade Holden from ever seeing her again. But he was totally smitten with the young Oscar winner and ignored his wife's ultimatum for what he would later call "the love of my life."

Incredibly, they managed to keep their steamy affair under the radar, even after a Sabrina crew member accidentally caught them romping in Holden's dressing room.

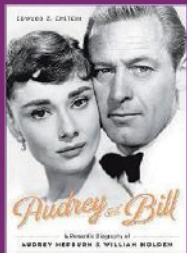

But the romance ended just weeks after Audrey's trip to meet Ardis. The Brussels-born beauty had always dreamed of having several babies and retiring from acting to raise them. Little did she realize that Holden had already undergone a vasectomy.

"Once while chatting brightly about the names of their future children, suddenly an embarrassed smile, tinged with fear, crept into Bill's face," writes Epstein. "He told her that the only thing they could not have together was children."

MARRIED BILL HOLDEN BROKE HEPBURN'S HEART

Revealed!

Shocking reason she dumped hunk after meeting his wife

The screen hunk with his long-suffering wife Ardis, whose screen name was Brenda Marshall

Holden and Hepburn lit up the screen in 1954's Sabrina

Audrey went on to marry actor Mel Ferrer

The revelation stunned Audrey. She couldn't believe that he hadn't mentioned this to her earlier.

"He would recall the fixed expression in her eyes – how she stood looking at him like a hurt, bewildered child," says the author.

With both her family dreams and trust shattered, Audrey instantly ended the illicit relationship.

She embarked on a rebound romance with troubled actor Mel Ferrer. And to lay to rest any whispers of an affair with Holden, the studio arranged to have her announce her engagement to Ferrer at Holden's house.

"Audrey's eyes avoided Bill's," Epstein says of that awkward night. "His bloodshot eyes underscored his angst. He was clearly a man carrying a torch."

The former lovebirds did reunite for the 1964 film Paris When It Sizzles, but by then the spark was long gone and the movie flopped.

Critics called it, "Paris When It Fizzles."

Audrey had a son with Ferrer and another boy with her second husband, psychiatrist Andrea Dotti before dying of colon cancer in 1993.

Holden went downhill due to booze problems. He killed the driver of another car in an Italian DUI crash, finally divorced Ardis in 1971 and bled to death after an inebriated fall at home in 1981.

SHATNER EATING HIMSELF TO DEATH!

STAR TREK icon William Shatner has been warned: diet or die!

The actor, 84 on March 22, has packed almost 300 pounds on his 5-foot-8 frame and friends fear he's heading off to the final frontier – using a knife and fork to dig his own grave at warp speed.

“My professional opinion is he has to diet or he is going to die,” says Orlando-based Dr. Gabe Mirkin, author of The Healthy Heart Miracle, who has not treated the superstar. “I’d say it is almost certain Shatner has diabetes, which puts him at risk of having a heart attack. His belly fat could be a symptom of potentially fatal fatty liver disease which leads to diabetes.”

“Diabetes is the most common cause of heart attacks and is not cured by medication. It’s cured by changing his lifestyle.”

Deadly diseases

Obesity boosts “your risk of cardiovascular disease – heart attacks, strokes and high blood pressure,” adds New York weight loss specialist Dr. Craig Title. “It also puts you at risk for diabetes, certain cancers, arthritis and sleep apnea. Achieving and maintaining a healthier weight range reverses his risk of these deadly diseases.”

Returning to L.A. March 1 after attending a charity event in Palm Beach, Fla. – and missing the funeral of his Star Trek co-star Leonard Nimoy – Shatner shocked onlookers. His face was bloated, his neck appeared to have disappeared in rolls of fat and his huge belly protruded under his red sports shirt.

“He looked nothing like the Captain Kirk we all remember,” says an onlooker. “He looked obese and unhealthy.”

Now, Shatner's loved ones hope 83-year-old Nimoy's Feb. 27 death from chronic obstructive pulmonary disease will have a “silver lining” by making the Hollywood heavyweight realize he too might not have long to live if he doesn't address his girth, a friend tells GLOBE.

TV's most iconic spaceman has battled his weight for as long as he has fought Klingons, say pals. He once weighed in at 170 pounds, but started expanding at the end of Star Trek's three-season run in 1969. He was tipping the scales at 200 for the string of Star Trek movies, made between 1984 and 1994. While Nimoy, who played Kirk's alien friend Mr. Spock, looked gaunt in his costume, Shatner's movie uniform transformed from tight to a loose tunic to hide his bulk.

Shatner's weight was up to about 230 for his Emmy-winning role as Denny Crane on Boston Legal, which ended in 2008, and has climbed steadily since.

His doting fourth wife of 14 years, Elizabeth, and his three adult children from his previous marriages “really ride herd on him” to change his eating habits. “But it goes in one ear and out the other,” the friend says.

And his weight gain is all the more worrisome given his medical history. Shatner had dangerous heart complications while undergoing hip replacement surgery in 2008 and had to curtail his activities last year after breaking his leg in a nasty fall from a horse.

Although he came under fire for not attending Spock's funeral, Shatner's really shaken up by Nimoy's death, say pals. “Bill has seen so many of his friends pass away, but Leonard's death really hit

Rather than go to longtime pal Leonard's funeral, Shatner and wife Elizabeth were at a Florida charity event

ESPOSITO'S A HOT NEW MISTRESS

BRUNETTE beauty Jennifer Esposito has won a plum role on the steamy summer soap Mistresses two years after she was dumped from the hit drama Blue Bloods.

The 41-year-old actress will play Calista Raines, the larger-than-life creative director of a luxury fashion brand who also leads the lifestyle of a famous socialite after work.

During the third season of the ABC series debuting in June, Calista becomes a friend, mentor and surrogate sister to Joss (Jes Macallan) while drawing her increasingly deeper into a world of secrets and betrayal.

On CBS' Blue Bloods, Esposito played Det. Jackie Curatola, Det. Danny Reagan's (Donnie Wahlberg) partner for two seasons. But she was sidelined by CBS in a dispute over her battle with Celiac Disease, an autoimmune digestive disease.

"CBS put me on unpaid leave and blocked me from working anywhere else after my doctor said I needed a reduced schedule due to celiac," she says.

"CBS didn't listen to my doctor and I collapsed on set. After a week off, my doc said I could return to work, but CBS implied I was not truly ill and this was a scheme to get a raise."

Meanwhile, Mistresses, also starring Rochelle Aytes and Yunjin Kim, is set to break a few female hearts, by dumping hunky Justin Hartley, who will appear in just the first two episodes.

Fans have been waiting for months to find out what happened to the relationship between Joss (Macallan) and Scott (Hartley) after she ditched him at the altar.

In the season two cliffhanger,

Joss was shown embracing Harry Davis (Brett Tucker) on the beach within a stone's throw of her planned wedding to Scott.

The episode ended with Harry's wife Savi (Alyssa Milano) walking down the beach to seemingly find her sister and her estranged husband in each other's arms.

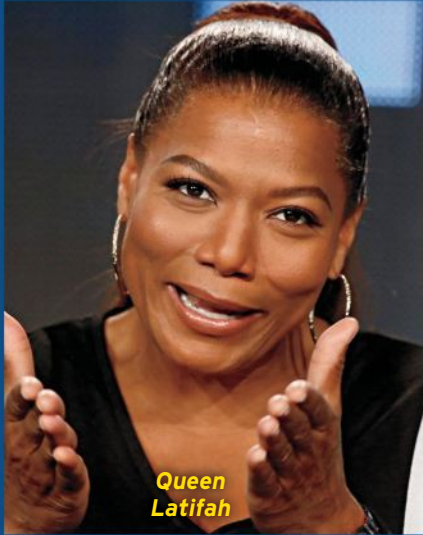

When bosses announced they were taking production from L.A. to Vancouver in a cost-cutting move, mother-of-two Milano decided to leave the show, so Savi is being written out, leaving the spotlight shining on the Joss/Scott story line.

"A lot of where Season 3 starts is dealing with the massive repercussions of Joss leaving Scott at the altar," said Macallan. "We know it's going to be wrapped up, but we don't know how they're going to handle it."

LATIFAH SINGS THE BLUES

Queen Latifah

QUEEN LATIFAH has bounced back with a starring role in the TV movie Bessie after her daytime talk show was axed after just two seasons.

She headlines the HBO film due in the spring about the heart-wrenching life of blues singer Bessie Smith, who rose to fame after launching her career in vaudeville in the 1920s.

Latifah had hit a low point in her career when her talker was axed by CBS. Original shows will stop airing this month.

The 45-year-old actress and singer, born Dana Owens, was so upset about the cancellation that she sent herself a bizarre note on Facebook urging her to remain strong.

"Dear Dana, Thank you for your strong work ethic and great effort in getting the show off the ground," she wrote. "We truly changed people's lives for the better. So stay positive, stay strong. There is so much more God has in store."

COSBY KID IS IN THE CLOSET

RAVEN-SYMONNE has landed a guest-starring role on Black-ish, playing the secretly gay sister of Anthony Anderson's character, Dre.

The former Cosby Show child star has signed up with the ABC comedy to play Rhonda, who's afraid to talk about her sexuality to her brother even though they're very close.

The episode centers around the playful rivalry the siblings have as they attempt to one-up each other while jockeying for position in their mother's favorite child

Openly gay in real-life, the That's So Raven cutie, who recently appeared on FOX's new hit hip-hop drama Empire, will appear in an episode aptly titled "Please Don't Ask, Please Don't Tell," due to air later this season.

Raven-Symone, 29, admitted last year that she was in a relationship with a woman. But she insists, "I don't want to be labeled gay, I want to be a human who loves humans."

UNFORGETTABLE LIVES ON

UNFORGETTABLE is turning out to be the show that just won't die as A&E picks up the crime drama to give it a fourth season later this year.

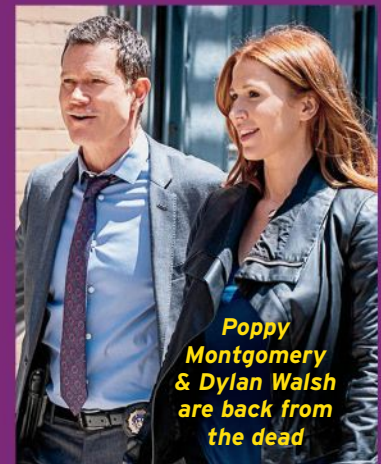

The show was canceled by CBS after two seasons, then renewed for 13 episodes last summer, only to be axed again in October.

Poppy Montgomery returns as homicide detective Carrie Wells, who has an amazing ability to remember little details from her past. Dylan Walsh, who plays ex-boyfriend and NYPD partner Al Burns, is also tipped to return.

The mystery series The Killing is the only other show to cheat death twice. It ran for two seasons on AMC before being axed. The cable network brought it back for a third season before canceling it again, and Netflix picked it up for a fourth and final season.

Insiders say A&E hopes to launch more scripted dramas, and believes Unforgettable

Poppy Montgomery & Dylan Walsh are back from the dead will be a good match for its successful reruns of CBS' Criminal Minds.

It's Not Unusual for Sir Tom Jones to be caught cheating – but he's still managed to stay married to the same woman for 58 years!

That doesn't mean his long-suffering wife Linda cast a blind eye to her husband's sexual shenanigans. In fact, a new book reveals she once threatened to separate the Welsh heartthrob from two very dear body parts if he didn't quit fooling around.

Lying

"You'd better straighten out, because you won't be able to do anything without your (family jewels)," author Sean Smith quotes Linda as saying after catching Jones lying about sleeping with The Supremes singer Mary Wilson in the late-1960s.

Linda and Tom, both 74, met in the Welsh village of Treforest and got hitched at age 16 after she became pregnant with their only child, Mark. She helped support him until the hit single It's Not Unusual propelled him to stardom in 1965.

Smith's new biography

It also propelled a lot of women his way.

While filming a TV series at England's legendary Elstree studios, Jones kept a motor home nearby to use as a love nest.

"If Tom spotted someone he liked the look of in the audience, his personal assistant Chris Ellis would be dispatched to invite her back for Dom Perignon," writes Smith in his biography, Tom Jones: The Life.

"Chris would then stand guard outside the door for the duration of the visit."

Linda once complained about his fame ruining their relationship while they were riding in a limo in New York. Tom pointed to her jewelry and noted that she hadn't "done too badly," at which point she began throwing her bling out the window.

Says one of Tom's pals, "Linda is the great love of his life, but he did have a genuine affection for certain women – because he is a genuine man."

TV COP MARISKA FIGHTS REAL-LIFE SEX ABUSE

MARISKA HARGITAY not only rescues sexual abuse victims on TV – she also helps them in real life!

The statuesque brunette, who plays Det. Olivia Benson on Law & Order: Special Victims Unit, founded the Joyful Heart Foundation, which has touched more than 14,000 survivors of sexual abuse and domestic violence.

"I am proud to be on the show, but I knew I wanted to do more to help survivors heal and reclaim their lives," says Hargitay, 51.

Now, Joyful Heart is joining the No More campaign to raise awareness by using celebrities to "engage bystanders" and "break the social stigma" of abuse.

"The experience of sexual assault and domestic violence can be extremely isolating," she notes. "I always have to remind myself that I don't have to be an expert, I just have to care."

Barker's dream of ending elephant acts comes true

BOB WINS WAR TO BAN CIRCUS ELEPHANTS

BOB BARKER's crusade to end traveling elephant acts in America scored a major victory when The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus announced plans to phase out pachyderm performers by 2018!

It's been a hard-fought campaign by the 91-year-old avid animal rights activist, who retired after 35 years of hosting TV's The Price Is Right. He petitioned Congress to ban elephant shows saying they "suffer terribly" in circuses.

But Ringling Bros. has always insisted its elephant acts are treated with love, kindness and respect. The circus has 43 pachyderms and operates The Center for Elephant Conservation in Florida.

However, circus executive vice president Alana Feld concedes, "There's been somewhat of a mood shift among our consumers. A lot of people aren't comfortable with us touring with our elephants" - so it's time to pack up their trunks and move on!

DON'T MESS WITH MOTHER NATURE!

ACTRESS Melanie Griffith is pleading with her Fifty Shades of Grey star daughter Dakota Johnson to stay away from plastic surgery and avoid the Hollywood trap of pursuing youth at all costs.

One of Hollywood's hottest newcomers, Dakota, 25, is a natural beauty and Melanie, 57, "is begging her not to destroy her looks the way she did," confides a family insider.

"Melanie admits she's made many bad life decisions. But way up there - with her addictions and terrible choices in men - is her decision to undergo procedures in a desperate bid to look young.

Fall victim

"Melanie knows firsthand the pressure Hollywood puts on actresses to lose weight and keep their looks. If they don't, there are plenty of up-and-coming beauties right behind them waiting to take their place. She's praying Dakota doesn't fall victim to these pressures."

The once-fresh-faced Working Girl star, who married and divorced Dakota's dad, actor Don Johnson, twice, has admitted having a breast-lift and collagen injections.

But experts say Melanie, who has battled drug and booze demons, appears to have done much more. "I believe she's had both her upper and lower eyelids done as well as a brow-lift and chin implant, which appears to be too wide," says plastic surgeon Dr. Brian Glatt of Morristown, N.J.

Detroit cosmetic surgeon Dr. Anthony Youn believes the actress, who is in the midst of a divorce from Zorro hunk Antonio Banderas, also had cheek and lip enhancements that left her with "duck lips."

In 2013, Melanie blasted Hollywood's rejection of older actresses, saying, "It's all about youth and beauty - for women, anyway."

Banderas, 54, previously said he banned Melanie "from ever going to a cosmetic surgeon again. It is something we have agreed to for the sake of our marriage."

Tragically, the couple split last summer after 18 years, amid allegations he cheated.

"But Melanie's botched looks will stay with her forever," says the insider. "She says that she often wants to cry when she looks in the mirror. And she doesn't want that to happen to her daughter."

Dakota has no plans to go under the knife, "but her feeling is never say never. She said you never know what will happen in the future.

"That's when Melanie broke down in tears and begged Dakota to promise to age gracefully.

"Melanie says the best advice she can give her daughter is for her to learn from her mom's mistakes."
